

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

September 14, 2010

Mr. Curtis D. Robinson
114 Woodland Street
Hartford, Connecticut 06105

Dear Curtis:

This is just a quick note to extend my warmest wishes and send you my Presidential proclamation, "National Prostate Cancer Awareness Month."

Prostate cancer takes too many lives each year, and we must ensure that more men are informed about all aspects of prostate cancer, including early detection and possible treatment. Until this disease can be cured, my Administration will continue to support prostate cancer research, including efforts to help determine why prostate cancer affects some racial and ethnic groups more than others.

As we work toward a future free from cancer, I hope you look back with pride on your efforts to combat prostate cancer and support African American men. I wish you all the best.

Sincerely,
